Table Readings — The Plan

Six Characters in Search of an Author · Village Players, Lausanne · dir. Kiarash Jamshidi

Before we get on our feet in August, we spend five Thursday evenings sitting round a table, reading the play together. This is where we get to know the play — and each other — with no pressure at all to “perform.” Come as you are.

When & where

Five Thursdays — Thu 2 July · Thu 9 July · Thu 16 July · Thu 23 July · Thu 30 July 18:00–21:00 at SSA Lausanne. There is a proper break each evening.

How each evening works

- We read an act, then talk about it. No staging, no moving — we stay at the table.
- Two reads of the main scenes. First completely flat — no acting, just the words. Then deliberately over-the-top — far too big. Both are meant to be freeing (and a little silly); the honest version comes later, on the floor.
- A few quick questions. After each part I’ll ask the characters in it a short question or two — “What do you want here?”, “What are you hiding?” Answer in a sentence, in character. There are no wrong answers.
- We read to discover, not to perform. Nothing you try is locked in. Play, guess, change your mind.

The five evenings

Thu 2 July Act One — and we settle in: how we work, and the world of the play.

Thu 9 July Act Two.

Thu 16 July Act Three.

Thu 23 July The whole play, joined up — how it all connects.

Thu 30 July A full read with the cues — then we are ready for the floor in August.

What to bring

- Your own script — please bring your own copy every week.
- A pencil — for notes you can rub out as things change.
- A bit of energy after your day. That’s all you need.

This play goes to some dark places, and we look after each other. If anything is ever too much, just say “hold” — we stop at once, no questions asked and no reason needed.

See you at the table. Any questions before we start, just ask.
